MOVE TO OUST THOMPSON AS COMMISSIONER

State Conservation Council Takes Action in Executive Session.

ASKED TO QUIT NOV. 1

New Step in Controversy Between Sportsmen, Agriculture Department.

John W. Thompson of Elida, Republican, head of the conservation division of the state department of agriculture of which I. S. Guthrie of LaRue is director, has been asked to resign by the state conservation council in the latest development in the controversy between the agriculture department and the League of Ohio Sportsmen.

Action of the council was announced today at Columbus after a stormy meeting last night which extended into the early morning hours, according to International News Service dispatches.

Sportsmen Start Controversy

Recently the League of Ohio Sportsmen became dissatisfied with the domination of the conservation division by the department of agriculture. They demanded that all future conservation appointments be made by the council. This demand was granted by Governor George White who notified Guthrie of the action.

A motion to request the commissioner to give up his position was unanimously adopted after the council went into executive session. Both Thompson and Guthrie were barred from the meeting.

Although members of the council declined to issue an official statement concerning their action, International News Service learned authoritatively that Commissioner Thompson was accused of "lack of leadership."

A statement sent to Thompson today by A. F. Moon of Conover, chairman of the council, requested that he resign.

Books printed in Russia now, as formerly, are not printed with any intention of being sold. They are printed to be given away. The government wants to see that the people have books. It is not a matter of profit, but of a duty to the people. The government orders that all the books that are printed, whether they are books of science, of art, of literature, of religion, of history, of geography, of medicine, of law, of agriculture, of industry, of commerce, of education, of recreation, of all kinds, shall be given away to the people. The government has a plan to give away to the people all the books that are printed in Russia. The government has a plan to give away to the people all the books that are printed in Russia. "You Sure Made It Tough for us Judges," says Gibbons Hello, everybody:—Well, we've just climbed down off the judges' bench—Tom Midgley, Cliff Henderson and I—after the hardest job of rough and tumble, catch-as-catch-can judging, we've ever been mixed up in. And, I'm speaking for the three of us when I say our hats are off to you, Sohio fans! You blew 'em off—sent the old champions flying sky high with those thousands and thousands of hang-up brass-tack yards of yours about the super-performance of Sohio X-70 and Extra-Ethyl.

When Ohio people get enthusiastic they sure go to it!

Now, I don't want to pull the old "hold-you-so-gg, but believe me, the whole thing made your Uncle Floyd feel good clear down to the toes. You see—this here contest was my idea. I told the Sohio crew you boys and girls could write better pieces about X-70 and Extra-Ethyl than I could, and the winning essays—no, by golly, all of the essays—proved just that.

To pick the 53 best ones out of that stack was—well, it was about as easy as picking the skinniest gold pieces out of the U. S. mint. But the decision is in, the prizes awarded, and if I do say it, those winners are winners! Anyway, we can't help being pretty proud of this job we've just done. Those letters weren't just given the once over—they were read through to the last jot. Some of them came in for second and third readings. Some of them had to go out for violation of rules. But everybody got the fairest break that three soft-hearted old incorruptibles could give them. Every entry stood on its own merit, and though I don't say we didn't have our little disagreements and disputes on some of the finer points, we're all three in unison now, and there's not a conscience-prick in the bunch.

So here's the congratulations of my two fellow judges and myself to the winners. Our only regret is that we didn't have about 40,000 more prizes to pass out and make everybody happy that deserves to be.

Good luck to you all—and sippy motoring.

Ohio's New Tax Laws

This is the fourth of a series of articles by International News Service, explaining the new taxation laws adopted by the Ohio 89th general assembly.

SECRECY will guard the property listings of taxpayers in Ohio for the first time under provisions of the new personal property tax law adopted by the 89th general assembly.

In the past the personal property return blanks have been public documents, open to inspection to anybody at any time.

Designing to remove obstacles in the way of obtaining an accurate estimate of the state's wealth, the special legislative committee on taxation provided that "neither the original returns of tangible and intangible property nor the assessment certificates made by the county auditor or the commission nor the classified (intangible) tax duplicate is open to public inspection except that the latter may be inspected under order of a federal court."

Balance sheets, copies of federal income tax returns, and other returns which a taxpayer may be called upon to furnish to the state tax commission must be enclosed in sealed envelopes, and within six months are to be returned to the taxpayer.

At no time, under the law, are such blanks open for scrutiny to anybody but members of the tax commission and their employees.

A fine of from $50 to $1,000 may be assessed against officials who divulge any information except in the exercise of their duties.

ENTERTAINS CIRCLE

Caledonia Hostess Mrs. Gustafson for Program and Social Hour.

CALEDONIA, Aug. 14.—Mrs. O. M. Mills opened her home Monday night for the monthly meeting of the Lend a Hand Circle of Kings Daughters. Twenty-two members responded to roll call and Mrs. Harold Greenfield, Mrs. Floy Weldman and Mrs. Leona Ush of Marion were guests present. Mrs. L. C. Sichel had charge of devotionals and Mrs. Forest Hipsher conducted the business session. The treasurer reported about $20 realized from the festival Saturday night. Mrs. Curtis Irey had charge of the program during the social hour and conducted a number of contests. Miss Margaret Kelley and Mrs. L. C. Sichel will entertain the circle at the next meeting.

The Ladies' Aid society of the Universalist church will hold a bake sale Saturday night in the council room.

Flashes of Life

By The Associated Press

PORTAFERRY, Northern Ireland. Two pairs of flannel yachting trousers have the embarrassment to the Spanish princesses, Beatrice and Marie Christine. They were wearing the trousers when they landed here while on a cruise.

LONDON.—A diamond ring that belonged to the first wife of Rev. Francis John Lye, 66, provost of Worcester college, Oxford, is destined to become a wedding gift for his fiancée, Miss Muriel Bruce. The first Mrs. Lye, who died last September, left her estate to her husband and bequeathed the ring, "to his wife should he marry after my death, as I hope he will."

MEDIA, Pa. — The Hodgson players have given a benefit. Between sets of a rock play, two gunmen robbed Miss Meriam Phillips, start of the cast, of the receipts amounting to $70. The robbers escaped while Scotland yard got its man on the stage.

LONDON.—A young benedict has learned that jills are not maintained as a sanctuary from an irate spouse. After he lost his pay betting on the dog races he went into a shop and stole a table knife then surrendered to police, but when he told his story in court he was sent home to face the music.

WARSAW.—A delegation of wives has protested to the prime minister against dismissal of married women employed by the government. The delegation had the sympathy of unmarried women employees, who regard their chances of matrimony as lessened by the government's course. The prime minister said it was necessary to safeguard the jobs of men with dependents. Whereupon the wives urged the dismissal of men with dependents. Where men with dowries.

Bombay, Calcutta, and the jungles of India are the setting for Ramon Navarro's latest screen offering, "Son of India." The supporting cast includes Madge Evans, who first became known as a juvenile star, Conrad Nagel, Marjorie Rambeau, and C. Aubrey Smith.

Madge Evans plays the role of an English girl visiting in India, who succumbs to the lure of the country, added by Navarro. The story lies in the "renunciation of love" by Navarro and the class conflict between the Eastern peoples and Anglo-Saxons. The scenery and setting of the locale are pleasing to the eye.

According to a Dublin dispatch, the "Blar-

The Weather Kiosks Doomed.

According to word from Washington, the weather bureau kiosks are doomed. Whereas at one time they were many, at present they may be found in only about twenty-five American cities, and the sooner they disappear the weather bureau and civic organizations in many of these cities will be pleased.

In one respect the history of the kiosks is remindful of the early history of the railroads. In early days the railroads were bones of contention among the inhabitants of cities, towns and villages, the people of those days believing that the ability to see the trains pass before their places added to the value of their properties. This led to many controversies, the people of each street running in the general direction of the proposed route insisting that its tracks be laid through their street. Here we have the explanation of why so many railroad lines were run over what at the time were the principal streets of population centers.

So it has been with the kiosks. Municipalities sought the kiosks by reason of the belief that it marked recognition of their importance, and also, possibly, because there was a time when just about every community went after almost anything it could get for nothing.

But experience has taught communities that kiosks were more in the nature of liabilities than assets, just as experience taught communities that a railroad line passing over a main street was a nuisance.

Almost invariably a kiosk is placed in the business section of a city close to the pavement and under the rays of the sun. Surrounding buildings in part cut off from it any breezes which may blow. Thus the instruments within it show a degree of heat not felt by the pedestrian. Worse than that, it is made of heavy glass in a cast-iron frame, so made as to protect its instruments from vandalism, only the bottom of the enclosure being open to the air. The result is that it gets the reflected heat of pavement, the retained heat of the glass and cast-iron frame and the heat which becomes bottled up within it and thus marks a temperature from five to ten degrees higher than the temperature taken by the weather bureau, which is that of the air without any added heat from the causes mentioned.

This is the source of trouble for the weather bureau. Citizens feel that the weather bureau is unreliable for the reason that it reports temperatures many degrees below that they see recorded by the kiosk when they look at it in sweltering weather.

And since newspapers have been printing the temperatures experienced by various cities during hot spells and reported by enthusiastic correspondents from kiosk readings, the civic organizations no longer have any use for kiosks for the reason that these reports give the outside public the idea that the cities thus reported are good ones to avoid in heated weather, with the result that not only is loss worked to its commercial interests, but the desirability of the city as a place of residence is lessened in the outside public mind.

It's not at all hard to understand that the weather kiosks are doomed.

Bishop Cannon Loses.

Justice Joseph W. Cox, of the District of Columbia supreme court, has refused the petition of Bishop James Cannon, Jr., for a writ to restrain the senate campaign fund committee, of which Senator Gerald P. Nye, of North Dakota, is chairman and chief inquisitor, from delving further into his, the bishop's, political activities in the presidential campaign of 1928. The charge against the bishop, made by Representative George H. Tinkham, of Massachusetts, is violation of the corrupt practices act in handling funds committed to him for use against Alfred E. Smith. Testimony was adduced at one of the committee's many sessions showing that the bishop had received $63,500 from a citizen of New York which he had not reported as required by law, and thus far he has accounted for but $17,000 of the amount, refusing to state his disposition of the other $46,500.

Counsel for the bishop charged that he was justified in withholding from the senatorial committee the information sought by it for the reason that it was going beyond its legal powers in seeking the information; that it was infringing on the province of a grand jury and usurping the functions of the judiciary.

The natural assumption would be that one occupying an exalted position in the church and preaching living beyond reproach would not be obdurate in regard to divulging the information sought; would, in fact, be glad to speak freely in regard to the political use to which he put the money. For some reason, however, the bishop resorted to the law in the hope of being able to evade telling the disposition made by him of the balance of the $63,500, with the result that the district supreme court sustained the motion of the committee's attorney, that the petition be dismissed for the reason that the court lacked jurisdiction; the court declaring at the same time that the committee should have a wide latitude in inquiries which might determine the need for further legislation.

Bishop Cannon's seeming inclination to consider himself outside the operation of the corrupt practices act, to say nothing of his very unfortunate participation in bucket-shop operations, have lost him much sympathy and unquestionably been far from beneficial to the church, but even at that there is bound to be a feeling that he, in fighting for himself, is waging a battle for the entire citizenship of the country in resisting the incursion of the senate into fields in which it transgresses upon the rights of private citizens.

"Senator Nye and his associates on the investigating committee," as an exchange has expressed it, "have widened the field of legislative inquiry until it is next to impossible to determine when they are acting as private detectives, partisan politicians, department of justice investigators, judges in a court of final decision, grand or petty jurors, legislators or fascist night riders. They have expanded the privileges of the United States senate until it appears that it will require some redefinitions of congressional authority if the senate is not to become an autocratic body of unlimited power whenever it cares to become one for any purpose."

"The committee has interfered in elections, operated as a secret police, prowled in private affairs, set up its own quasi-criminal court system, exposed the private papers of persons, endeavored to defeat or elect candidates according to its partisan bent, and has gone roughshod over its constitutional authority over the rights of private citizens and into the political sovereignty of the states. Like Bishop Cannon, the committee professes a higher political morality and it uses that as sanction for its wantonness."

Bishop Cannon may have offended against the law, but the senate campaign fund committee has offended against the very general conception of public decency, and it would not be at all surprising were a survey to show that, in the eyes of the public, it has been by far the greater offender.

From London comes a story to the effect that the royal commission on licensing will urge the government to take over all public houses and breweries and class all brewers, we have been told all along that Britain's handling of the liquor evil closely approached the ideal.

Fifteen thousand tickets have already been

The protest of the Associated Cigar Manufacturers and Leaf Tobacco Dealers against the purchase of foreign-made cigars by the navy has been answered by the navy department with the statement that it is required to purchase supplies for home consumption in the United States unless the difference in cost is "unreasonable." Can this be taken as a gentle hint that cigar prices are too high?

Murders in London increased from ten in 1929 to 21 in 1930, and indictable offenses from 17,664 the former year to 20,553 during the latter, chief among the offenses being blackmail, bigamy and drunkenness. Huh! An enterprising American city can beat the London 1930 murder record in a month and the record of indictable offenses, blackmail and drunkenness being included, in a week.

President William Green, of the American Federation of Labor, deplores the hoarding of prolongs the economic recession, but even at that it's hardly probable that he deplores it to anything like the extent of the fellow who hasn't any to hoard.

here in this great land of opportunity imagine that our tax-eaters are without peers.

Editorial Opinion.

THE LEGION AND THE PACIFICISTS.

A magazine writer in the current issue of one of the monthlies criticizes the American legion because it supports military preparedness. This is consistent with pacifist monomania. The complaint is common to the addicts. The person who regards the military function as a part of the orderly processes of the country and who expects that the government will maintain it as it does other necessary responsibilities of administration is in an enemy of the rational order of society.

The American legion is composed mostly of men who were called out of civil pursuits to bear arms. None of them had any part in making the occasion which required them to give up all their normal ways of life and be subjected to unusual pressure, discomfort, and danger. All of the 4,000,000 got a wrench of some sort. Two million of them were transported overseas, where many were killed, wounded or died of sickness. All who went across were subjected to the hazard of submarine attack.

The training camp men whose experiences in the army were cut short on this side of the Atlantic because the war came to an end before they could be trained and shipped had at least the rigors of intensive schooling and discipline, the separation from their families and the dislocation of their profitable private enterprises. The 4,000,000 or so of men taken for military service had these things in common. The occasion for it developed under pacific administration of government.

Mr. Wilson's great contribution to humanity was to be his protection of the United States from war. His secretary of state was Mr.
Bryan—up to the moment of the big explosion.
Mr. Bryan's thirty or more peace treaties are in the state department archives, the fruit of his life, gathered with the world shaking itself to pieces in armed strife. The government was a pacifist paradise in which palms flourished and arms rusted and the United States, in consequence, went to war as naked as a newborn baby and almost helpless. The pacifists accomplished only one thing, with full control of government. They didn't avoid the war, but they saw to it that the American troops entered it borrowing guns and begging military supplies.

In wartime, the peace addicts are conscientious objectors. They will not willingly man mine sweepers or drive ambulances. The country gets the best out of them if it can keep them from obstructing enlistments, from interfering with the service of supplies and conveying encouragement or information to the enemy. Before a war they will be responsible, guilty, for as far as they are able, for the liability of the country to meet the situation, and in war they will discredit the purpose even if a government of their own has made the occasion.

It is not probable that the men who served in the World War and now are members of the American legion will be called on again for service. It is possible that some of them may be, but it is unlikely. Their sons may be mustered in if things go wrong. Their younger fellow countrymen will have the job and they feel that it is the rankest sort of injustice to allow a country's soil will assume none of the pain and hazards when their scheme of life crashes down under a weight they themselves may have put on it.

Any theory of life must make allowance for a lot of queer antics, but indulgence of these pacifist grotesqueries with other people paying the bill is beyond any rational toleration

Modern Living and Health.

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

Constipation is probably the most common disorder of the American people. The prevalence of this condition has been attributed to the modern method of living.

It has been known for years that sedentary habits cause this condition. Our ancestors, whose daily livelihood required marked muscular activity, rarely, if ever, complained of this symptom.

The food of today is different from that which our forefathers were accustomed to eat. Highly concentrated foods and foods made by chemical processes demand too little work of the body.

Lack of exercise, the high pressure of modern living, together with negligence of the daily elimination, make a combination that results in chronic constipation. The constipation, in its turn, produces an undesirable reaction upon the body.

The victim of constipation rarely arises in the morning eager to do his day's work. There is sluggishness of mind as well as of intestine.
In addition, the body is likely to have its defense against diseases considerably lowered.
In consequence such individuals are prone to all types of infection.

It is not entirely the fault of our eating—it must not be forgotten that constipation may be caused by personal laziness.

The habit of regular elimination is readily developed in children and its importance should never be overlooked. Children should be trained in the importance of the habit of regularity. This habit, once established, will remain throughout life.

There should be a change from the sedentary life to an active one if the adult is to overcome constipation. People who have not indulged in exercise should start in a moderate way to increase the exercise, depending upon their age and physical condition.

In addition to exercise, the diet is important.
Vegetables and fresh fruits should be eaten at two of the three meals of the day. Food should be properly chewed and never gulped down without chewing.

ANSWERS TO HEALTH QUERIES

MRS. O.A. Q.—What causes a discharge of blood every time I blow my nose?

A.—This may be due to a catarrhal condition.

N.B. Q.—What is the best way to reduce the hips and stomach?

A.—It is difficult to reduce weight in any part of the body without reducing in general.
A gradual reduction in the amount of food consumed, with the regular exercise will work wonders in most cases.

P.M. Q.—What do you advise for varicose veins?

A.—If the varicose veins are slight, bandag-ing or wearing an elastic stocking is often effective, but in most cases, surgical procedure is necessary.

B.M.L. Q.—What causes spots in the form of watery blisters to come on legs and feet?

A.—This may be due to eczema. Send self-addressed, stamped envelope for further particulars and repeat your question.

M.W. Q.—What do you advise for sinus trouble?

A.—This condition requires special treatment by a nose and throat specialist.

B.B.R. Q.—What causes pains under the heart, in the left side and in the abdomen, is it due to gas?

A.—This is probably due to indigestion. Correct your diet and avoid constipation.—Copy-

Ancient Star-Gazers.

BY ARCHIBALD HENDERSON.

It is customary for the historians of science, as a rule, to dismiss with but a slight and passing mention all astronomy before Copernicus. Yet there is a host of curious interest in the history of the efforts of man, unguided by any spirit of organized science, to arrive at the truth. In the case of the ancients, the cultural lack of suitable instruments of precision, the imperfect nature of the so-called knowledge of the day, the gross superstition of early peoples, the adverse attitude of religions towards science, its purposes and aims—in view of all these difficulties and obstacles, it is remarkable how much was actually accomplished.

According to Hector McPherson in his "Modern Cosmologies," the early cosmologies, or theories of the constitution of the universe fell into three groups. These may be entitled the mythological, the philosophical and the scientific. In a world dominated by a sort of Pantheism, in which nature was conceived as peopled with warring deities, there was little or no chance for the development of any sort of rational cosmology. A sharp distinction was drawn by the Hebrew prophets between the study of gods and the study of nature and of natural phenomena. Divination by means of the stars, or astrology, gave a certain standing to the scientific idea of studying stars for their own sake. Of course the priest-astrologers of Nineveh and Babylon believed that the stars controlled human destiny, and there are people who still believe this. But, in order to study the stars at all, for whatever purpose, it is necessary to assume an ordered world. As McPherson correctly puts it, the astrologers of Assyria were able to predict a solar eclipse, and those of Babylon to calculate in advance the future positions of sun and moon, and the planets with a fair degree of accuracy. The work of these Semitic star-gazers prepared the way for the cosmologies of the Greek philosophers.

The early Babylonians were pioneers in their observation of the stars, and in turning their astronomical discoveries to some practical account. Herodotus records that "the pole and the sun dial and the division of the day into twelve parts the Greeks learned from the Babylonians." Miletus, where Thales was born, early came into touch with Babylonian life and culture. Thales was doubtless familiar with the tables of an eclipse of the sun. A founder of the first school of philosophy, Thales inaugurated the study of nature for its own sake.—

Had an Ohio Origin.

BY J. H. GALBRAITH.

Webster's International dictionary says that "OK" used so familiarly to signify approval, is from the Choctaw Indian language, and is properly spelled "Okeh," meaning "I am agreeing." It is so, and not otherwise, but General J. Warren Keifer, of Springfield, is authority for the statement that it is of Ohio origin and sprang out of an incident at a political meeting in the campaign in which General Harrison elected president, held at Urbana.

People came to that meeting in wagons for miles around. General Harrison himself was there. The date was September 15, 1840. The farmers with their farm wagons decorated and bearing mottoes on their sides made up most of the parade. Among these, General Keifer says, there was one from Jackson township, Champaign county.

The wagon was filled with farmers and farmers' hands, and which bore a slogan on which were the words, "The People Is O'Korrect." Because of the misspelling this wagon came in for a lot of badinage from the Whigs' political opponents, and Sam Medary, then publishing the leading newspaper at Columbus, seized upon it as indicating the mentalities of the supporters of "Tippecanoe and Tyler Too," and it was given the widest publicity.

There was an ardent Whig who kept a tavern on the National road at the edge of Springfield at this time, who sought to turn the joke the other way, and so he changed the name of his tavern to "The O.K. House." This tavern stood on grounds now occupied by the Ohio Masonic home. It was much frequented by travelers whose attention was riveted by the peculiar name of the tavern, and they carried the story and the meaning of the two letters, O.K., to all parts of the country. It supplied a need for a ready symbol of approval in business, and a quickly secured a vogue as such, that has grown with the years.

What Will Better Marion?

The following is the answer of one citizen to the question, "What Will Better Marion?" —the second in the questionnaire circulated by Dr. Carl W. Sawyer to get a comprehensive insight into the community feeling regarding our home city, in the hope of arriving at a remedy for handicaps, if any, from which Marion suffers. From day to day, answers of various citizens to the same question will be given publicity on this page.

Marion is a manufacturing town, and what it needs in order to progress is similar to numerous other cities in the United States.
We need and should invite more industries and concerns to our city, should assist them in locating and getting started to the fullest extent.

In the industries and shops we now have in Marion we should do everything possible to see that the relation between employer and employee are the best. The working conditions in our shops should be made as good for the employees as possible. This causes contentment among the working class and the man who is contented will produce far more than a disgruntled employee.

Marion should do everything within its means to attract tourists and visitors to our city, and after on having them here, we should see that they are treated courteously.
The children of Marion should be furnished suitable playgrounds and any movement such as the Y. M. C. A., Boy Scouts and other similar organizations, should be backed to the fullest extent as Marion's future depends upon the boys now in these organizations.

LIFE TERMS BEGUN BY TORCH SLAYERS

Confined at Arbot Pending Trip to Marquette.

He applied a match to the who was being questioned in another room, also confined.

He had named Oliver as member of the murder was arrested while painting in Ypsilanti. A few days later he was taken to the jail where the question was being conducted he said, "I did it, I did it," and a full confession of his brutal affair.

After announcement was made of the confessions, a crowd gathered around the Ypsilanti. Officers then made an attempt to bring the prisoners to the arraignment at the court.

Men were led out, the crowd was pushed forward and the hands of the prisoners were pummelled and but the officers rescued the trip to Ann Arbor without incident.

Reaching the county jail in Ann Arbor, another crowd gathered and ropes were stretched by state police to hold back the throng. During the excitement, David Gartin, son-in-law of Sheriff Andrews, fell and fractured his leg while taking the men to their cells. The crowd around the jail grew rapidly. At length a company of National Guardsmen were called out.

At 6:40 p. m., an hour and five minutes after the confessions had been given at Ypsilanti, the prisoners were arraigned before Justice of the Peace Jay Payne, waived arraignment and pleaded guilty.

Crowd Increases.

Still the crowd grew, and a quarter of an hour later when the men were started across the street to the courthouse in two automobiles, the enraged citizens pressed against the machines. Tear gas bombs were discharged by police, the crowd gave way and the prisoners were taken into the courtroom of Judge George W. Sample.

Smith and Oliver repeated to the judge the confessions they had made at Ypsilanti. Smith gave as the reason for the crime the fact that he was identified by the two boys during the robbery of the couples while they were parked on Tuttle hill road several miles from the scene of the burning of the auto.

Oliver also said that the Negro twice assaulted one of the girls, Anna May Harrison of Cleveland. Smith made no mention of an assault. The other girl victim was Vivian Gold, also of Cleveland.

Judge Sample then pronounced sentences—life imprisonment in Marquette branch prison on each of four counts, the terms not to run concurrently. The passing of the sentence in this manner practically removed all possibility of parole.

Before imposing judgment, the judge said "I don't wonder that the crowd is howling for vengeance. If they had listened to this testimony, I am afraid they would not be as civil as they are."

The testimony made me heart-sick—that our highways and our places of pleasure should have to be infested by such worms."

Judge Sample instructed that the prisoners be held in the main Michigan penitentiary at Jackson until removal to Marquette. In the upper peninsula, the institution utilized for the imprisonment of the more hardened criminals.

Barriade Reported

As the officers prepared to start for Jackson, reports came that the road between the two towns had been barricaded.

Another brush with the mob occurred when the start for Jackson finally was made. As the prisoners were placed in automobiles drawn close to the courthouse doors, the crowd again attempted to gain possession of the men. Tear gas again was used to disperse those nearest the cars until they could get away.

Twelve automobiles containing state police deputies, other law enforcement officers and newspaper men comprised the motorcade to Jackson. The trip was made without incident.

The bodies of the four young people were found in the burning automobile about 5 a. m. Tuesday by a farmer, who was awakened by the reflection of the flames on his window.

Officers of Wayne and Washington counties, aided by state police, worked on the case together in more or less disorganized fashion until Wednesday night, when state authorities placed it in the hands of Harry S. Toy, prosecuting attorney of Wayne county (Detroit) with whom the other officers continued to cooperate.

A dozen or more suspects were gridded before the slayers were found. Two of these suspects—Lawrence and Paul Keene, brothers living in a shack on wheels near the place the car was found—were being held when the confessions came. Eventually they were charged with violation of the prohibition law, and still are in custody.

Blackstone told his story, a cold, brutal recital of bare facts.

"Monday we thought we would rob a gambling game in Milan. We went but it didn't look good to us, so we said we would go down lovers lane and knock off some of these bachelors. There is always easy."

"We robbed them. Wheatley recognized us. The boys said they wouldn't make no complaint. Smith said, 'what about the girls?' Then we dragged one of the girls out of the car and she came out clawing."

"We lined them up and started to frisk them. Smith jerked out a pistol and fired three or four times. Then we had to shoot them all. We knocked them down and put them in the back of the car and Oliver drove back to Ypsilanti while Oliver waited a little way off with Wheatley's car and the bodies. On the way one girl groaned so we hit her with a wrench."

"We were scared they was not dead so we took rocks and beat them in the heads until we was sure. Then we drove the car off the road and set fire to it. We went right by the Lore home after we had killed those folks with the bodies in the car."

The Lore and Wheatleys were neighbors. The girls had been visiting in the community.

Oliver accused Blackstone of attacking one girl.

"Blackstone attacked Anna May Harrison while I stood guard with a gun. Then he ordered the Gold girl out. She said she would rather die first. 'Die then,' Blackstone said, and shot her."

Lore rushed Blackstone, fighting furiously, and he shot him and Wheatley, and the other girl Lore got up after being shot and Blackstone hit him with a stone. Then we bundled the bodies into the car and drove away." Smith's statement was practically the same.

COUNCIL MOVES TO OUST J. W. THOMPSON

State Conservation Council Takes Action in Executive Session.

him to vacate his $5,000-a-year position effective Nov. 1.

During the long discussion of the advisability of discharging Thompson, who was appointed by former Governor Myers Y. Cooper in February, 1929, the question of a successor was not discussed.

To Meet in Sandusky

A regular meeting of the council is to be held at Sandusky and Cedar Point, Aug. 27 and 28 when that problem probably will be solved, it was understood.

Concerning the decision to dismiss Thompson, council members would not declare that the action was taken from "a non-political standpoint" and that Thompson's honesty and integrity were not questioned.

The decision, according to Moon, "was reached upon our own initiative and by our own free will."

Governor White will be requested to remove Thompson if he refuses to resign. It was reported.

Told that the question of his removal was to be considered, Thompson refused to make any statement to the council except to declare his willingness to answer any questions they might wish to ask him.

Thompson also declined to make any statement either for or against Thompson.

Upon the motion of I. S. Myers of Akron and Dr. H. C. McClelland of Lima, the council went into executive session, barring Thompson, Guthrie and newspaper men from the meeting.

As a part of a retraining program the council discharged J. W. Thompson of Columbus, a special investigator in the law enforcement division effective Saturday.

Council members denied that they had quarreled with Thompson over the personnel of the heads of the Roosevelt game preserve, as was reported at Portsmouth. Thompson's action in discharging John Brown supervisor, was at the order of the council, and the council at no time ordered Brown to "stand pat" in defiance of Thompson's instruction, officials said.

The first action in the dismissal of Brown was taken yesterday. Ohio sportsmen met for a week-end meeting with Governor White at the Roosevelt game preserve. It was said.

The Brazilian congress has authorized the construction of aerial railways throughout the republic.

ARCURI SHOOTING CHARGE DISMISSED

Testimony Fails To Show Marion Man Fired Gun in Fracas.

arraigned before Municipal Judge W. R. Martin yesterday. Runkle pleaded not guilty when arraigned but later changed his plea. He is being held waiting sentence.

In dismissing Arcuri, Judge Martin said that even though he had the gun in his hand when the Nicolosi brothers emerged from their home following the firing of the two shots, there was no evidence to show that Arcuri had fired either of them.

Police are satisfied, Acting Chief Ira Shrock said yesterday, that the wounds received by Arcuri were the result of a gun battle, growing out of a feeling which has developed since the arrest of Arcuri on an assault charge brought by the father of a nine-year-old girl. The man with whom police say Arcuri engaged in the fight lived with the parents of the girl.

The shooting took place near the homes of Frank and Jim Nicolosi on West Center street. Instead of Sam and Nick Nicolosi as reported in yesterday's account of the shooting of The Star.

entists. One recently explored the atmosphere 40,000 feet up. Another tells you that in Greenland the ice is 8,850 feet deep.

Greenland, according to those learned Germans, is like a great bowl filled with ice.

We should be grateful that water, unlike a majority of other substances, expands with cold instead of contracting.

If, like iron, copper, etc., water contracted, becoming heavier at low temperature, the ice would sink to the bottom of lakes and rivers, instead of staying on top to be melted by the sun.

Fish could not breed, navigation would be difficult or impossible.

By expanding the ice instead of contracting it, thus keeping it afloat, nature has done us a great favor.

The latter game will be played at 5 p. m.

The complete revised schedule of play for Sunday is as follows:

12 noon—Recreation Billiards of Marion vs. Botkin & Taylor Drugs of Delaware.

WINS BY A NOSE

Judges Place Long Nosed Horse Ahead in Close Race.

By The Associated Press
CHICAGO, Aug. 14.—Here's that story again about the horse with the longest nose: In the fourth race at Hawthorne yesterday, Cheers from the stable of C. E. Davidson, and A. Felleter's, came down the stretch in step. They were so close together at the finish that the crowd yelled "dead heat" but the placing judges decided Cheers had the longer nose and gave him the decision.

Harold Fetter, Cloyce Messenger and last by far from least, Francis Bacon, former Steam Shovel luminary.

This team will be plenty tough, and it will have to be, for its opponents, the Firestone Tires of Lima, come here with a veteran lineup capable of holding its own with most any team. The Lima rubber men are playing right up among the leaders of the home city all this season and will offer the Luchenes all the opposition they are likely to care for.

An All-Star Nine
The Farmers' club of Marion county is made up of the cream of the players of the Marion county circuit. Carol Carls of Waldo, Merton Porter of Green Camp, Melvin Conwell of Waldo, Earl Furniss of Kirkpatrick, and several others have been playing good ball all season and will probably keep right on doing it in this tournament. The Farmers have secured Bryant Corwin, stellar hurler of Marion city to assist with the mound duties.

The Lima Equity Union Creamery probably packs as much wallop as any foreign team entered for play. In Don Lamphar the hurler have one of Lima's leading slab artists. The Equity team opposes the Huber Rollers in the first start and it should be a great treat to watch Mutt Kellogg, one of Marion's fastest hurlers, trade slants with one of Lima's finest. How those boys should burn up the distance from the pitcher's box to home plate. Strikeouts will be the rule rather than the exception in this game or the signs of baseball's Zodiac are all haywire.

Plenty More Stars
These above named men are only a few of those who will be seen in action Sunday. To appreciate the competition sure to be offered it will be necessary to see the games played. Officials of the tourney have placed the cost of admission within the price of all concerned. Lunch and refreshments will be available on the grounds for those hardy individuals who get there early and stay late.

The tourney management has made arrangements for a thorough cleaning of the park grandstand and the improving of the playing field. The outfield will be mowed Sunday morning and the infield scraped and rolled at the same time. It looks like a big afternoon for the softball fans.

ONE AMERICAN LEFT IN AMATEUR TOURNEY
"Ducky" Yates Advances to Semi-Final of Canadian Golf Play.

By The Associated Press
MONTREAL, Aug. 14.—Of an official United States contingent of 26, only Arthur (Ducky) Yates of Rochester, N. Y., remained in the fight for the Canadian amateur golf championship today.

Yates advanced to the semi-final round yesterday by eliminating Phil Farley of Toronto, 5 and 2. He was matched today against Jack Cameron of Montreal. The other semi-final pitted the defending champion, C. Ross (Sandy) Somerville, of London, Ont., against Bob Morrison of Victoria.

Somerville, the outstanding favorite for the crown, found young Edwin A. Innes of Montreal a tough foe for 18 holes but the champion unreeled a string of pars and birdies on the second eighteen to win 7 and 5.

Cameron dispensed of Fred Wood of Vancouver, 3 and 2, while Morrison eliminated the young Detroit player, Francis W. Ryan, two up, after an uphill battle.

PINCH HITTERS COME THROUGH TWICE TO CLOUT HOME RUNS

Cincinnati Drops Boston in Both Ends of Double Header Program.

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.
Associated Press Sports Writer
When a ball player goes into a game as a pinch batsman and hits a homer it is a rare occurrence.

Tom Jenkins of the St. Louis Browns hit one against the Boston Red Sox with two on base, providing half the runs of the third inning rally which brought the Browns a 9 to 6 victory. Hack Wilson, last year's home run king of the National League, stepped in as a pinch batsman with two on base in the seventh inning of the Chicago Cubs' battle with the Philadelphia Phillies and nicked Phil Collins for a homer.

Collins, however, gained ample revenge for that blow in the same inning when he rapped out a single and drove in the run that gave the Phils a 4 to 3 triumph.

Cubs Drop Match
The defeat dropped the Cubs once more into third place as the New York Giants divided a double header with Pittsburgh. Aided by a couple of costly Giant errors, Pittsburgh piled up four runs in the first inning to win the opener 7 to 5.

Old Clarence Mitchell proved too much for the Pirates batters in the second game while the Giants scored five times off Larry French in the first frame to win 6 to 1.

This change in the standing once more benefitted the St. Louis Cardinals, who increased their margin of leadership to 9½ games by trouncing Brooklyn for the third straight time, 8-5.

Sparkey Adams made five straight hits and Frank Fusch hit a timely homer.

Pirates Gain Ground
Pittsburgh's even break put the Pirates into a virtual tie for fifth place with Boston as Cincinnati slammed a double defeat onto the Braves.

An assault that netted 22 hits, six by Tony Cuccinello, gave Cincinnati the first game 17 to 3. In the second Johnson and Frey held the Braves to four hits while Cuccinello broke loose again, hitting a homer with two on base in the eighth for the runs that brought a 4 to 2 victory.

Philadelphia's Athletics, aided considerably by the Chicago White Sox, made their American league lead eleven games over Washington. A four hit pitching performance by Rube Walberg gave the 7, while Mike Kelley's men turned 15 hits into 15 runs while holding the Indians to a single tally in the second contest.

Milwaukee won the first game of another doubleheader from Toledo, 1 to 0, on Americo Polli's four-hit pitching. The Hens turned in the second game and bunched enough of their 12 hits, to account for a 4 to 3 decision.

Indianapolis outlasted Minneapolis, in the first one and won 8 to

CRAWFORD COUNTY PROSECUTOR SPEAKS

J. D. Sears of Bucyrus Addresses Marion Kiwanians at Luncheon.

A cure for the present depression, believes J. D. Sears, prosecuting attorney of Crawford county, who was a speaker at the luncheon meeting of the Kiwanis club held at the Marion club yesterday noon, is the restoration of confidence—a return of the belief in the honesty and integrity of the people as a whole.

The spirit of doubt—of suspicion, has become such a dominant factor in modern life. It has warped the judgement of business men, as well as the public in general, in the opinion of the speaker.

He compared the present time with that of years ago when, he said, business was conducted upon the integrity of the man rather than upon the amount of his collateral. The abuse of the bankruptcy law and of the corporation law, was pointed out by the prosecuting attorney as vital factors in promoting this feeling of distrust. He lamented the absence in modern day life of what he termed the "Abe Lincoln" type of honesty when people regarded the paying of their debts as a sacred duty.

A group of vocal solos by Miss Betty Crissinger accompanied on the piano by Miss Grace Kline, provided a pleasing variety to the luncheon program.

ADD HEALTH TO HOT BREADS

Hot breads are tempting. But often they lack roughage. The absence of bulk from foods often results in constipation.

But now you can have hot breads with roughage. Simply add a cupful of Kellogg's ALL-BRAN to the recipe. This delicious cereal furnishes the bulk needed to assure proper elimination. You will find many appetizing recipes on the red-and-green ALL-BRAN package.

Equally tempting as a ready-to-eat cereal with milk or cream.
Two tablespoons daily are guaranteed to prevent and relieve both temporary and recurring constipation. In severe cases, use with each meal.

ALL-BRAN also furnishes needed iron for the body. At all grocers. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

OLD BINDERS WORK WELL
WILMINGTON, O., Aug. 14—Harry Clark, Adams township year with a binder he bought in 1898, and the machine functioned perfectly despite its 33 years of service. Two other Clinton county farmers have binders that have been in service since 1900.

BREAD—THE BASIS OF EVERY GOOD MEAL

Once Upon a Time

There Was No

TWIST BREAD

in Marion

That's not easy to believe, so many families now depend upon it at every meal, but nevertheless it's so.

We decided to give Marion a wonderful loaf of bread, a loaf made from the purest of ingredients the women of Marion would select themselves.

Then we tested and tested and finally evolved a perfect formula for perfect bread. And the result was TWIST BREAD.

Your Grocer, too, saw that you would enjoy this loaf and gladly agreed to recommend it to you.

NEDDA GUY RETAINS POST OF FAVORITE

Hambletonian To Be Run Today After Two Successive Delays.

By The Associated Press
GOSHEN, N. Y., Aug. 14.—Two successive postponements have left the probable starting field in the $60,000 Hambletonian stake unchanged and William H. (Nedda) Guy secure in the role of favorite.

Completing the field in the racing classic, which officials hoped to run off today, were Canebe, Belricka, Calumet Bush, Canebe Butler, Keno and Charlotte Has over.

A four-race program was put yesterday but officials decided early in the day to postpone the Hambletonian for another day. Racing was delayed for an hour and a half because of the rainy condition of the track but by the end of the afternoon the track had dried out and was in good condition. The Hambletonian is run on a one-mile heats. First place carries a cash prize of $31,497.37, second place $9,014.27 and third place $4,507.13. Three other stakes receive $1,000 apiece.

BULL FORCES STAGE DRIVE

Price Advances Result From Activity Anticipating Fall Trading.

The Associated Press
CINCINNATI, Aug. 14.—Bull activity in today's stock market was a reflection of the general stimulus to general business activity in nearly all lines, and the advance of 1 to 5 points in the morning. The advance was still somewhat tentative, but manifested an important feature.

Average is widespread. A point or two were gained, while gains of 3 to 5 points were seen in such issues as American Chemical, J. I. Case, National Electric, Eastman, National Stores, New York Central, U. S. Steel, American Telephone & Telegraph, Bethlehem, New York City, and Johns Manville. The advance was aggressive in several lines, which were in large volume at advance. Radio, for example, several blocks of the tape of 5,000 to 10,000 shares were traded in the early afternoon. The advance was not enough to encourage speculation, but it was enough to lead to the belief in speculative circles that the seasonal improvement will be of fair proportions.

Signs of improvement. The weekly mercantile reviews of some clothing manufacturers, but Bradstreet's, in summary, said the situation is still improving, and the increased activity is noticeable. Bradstreet's report of new orders taken out in 215 cities during July was encouraging, showing a gain of 13 per cent over June, and leading to the hope that the building slump so apparent during the second quarter had been checked.

Those whose birthday it is may prepare for a year of substantial progress to be attained by direct, aggressive and vigorously constructive measures to follow upon the breaking away of old, stagnant and crystallized affairs. A child born on this day should be versatile, energetic, industrious and should win its way through its own merits and personal popularity and graces.

Asks for Child
Donald A. Tonguet has filed a motion in common pleas court, asking for the custody of his minor child one day each week. When Elizabeth Tonguet, his former wife, was granted a divorce several months ago she was also given custody of the child.

In the divorce decree Tonguet was given permission to see the child at reasonable periods. Since the divorce was granted he has remarried. The defendant charges that for the last three months his former wife has refused to let him see the child.
